ALEXANDRIA, VA. MONDAY, APRIL 18, 1870

The regular mail steamer from Rio de Jan ciro, brings news confirming the report of the death of Lopez and the close of the Paraguayan war. On the first of March the Brazilian General attacked and carried the position of Lopez. Lopez hmself, his son, Col. Lopez, F. Sanches, ex-President of the Republic; Gen. Camenero, and several other high officers of Paraguay, were killed. The mother, brothers and four children of Lopez, Mrs. Lynch and many officers were made prisoners. A large quantity of arms and ammunition were also captured. At last advices a treaty of peace was being prepared with the Provisional Government of Paraguay, which had convened a Constitutional Assembly for the purpose.

A new Department of the government is proposed-to be called the Department of Justice, of which the Attorney General shall be the head, with an assistant, to be called the Solicitor General, at a salary of $7,500; two Assistant Attorneys General, at a salary of $5, 000 each; in case of death, absence, or inability of the Attornies General, the Solicitor General to fill the place. "GOLDWIN SMITH."—Nearly a month ago many of the journals published a letter from Prot. Goldwin Smith on "Immigration to Vir ginia," which first appeared in the London Daily News. The letter contained the term "carpet bagger," and rather a pungent discrimination against Northern men who, when they reach Southern latitudes, go in for office, and are chiefly designated by that term. Prof. Smith now makes public the fact that the letter which appeared in the News was not written for publication. He seemingly rather retracts. Our opinion is that whether written for publication, or not for publication, is very immaterial. He appears to be but a fussy character, at

The room in which they are stored is accessible only by clambering up a narrow staircase, over an archway. The room has no daylight, and it the books are to be examined it must be by candle-light. These books have been consigned to this literary tomb as a result of the provisions of the copyright law now in force. This law requires that a person wishing to procure a copyright must send a copy of his book to the clerk's office for transmission to the Patent Office. The books thus transmitted have been deposited in the umber room above described, where many of them still remain in the orginal packages .-Wash. Chronicle.

This manufactory was established more than ambition until recently appears to have been tyr to indigestion is fretful, irritable and unscbounded by a desire to manufacture only plain and substantial fabrics. But the doors and windows of that modest establishment were wantonly smashed to pieces by Federal soldiery why should human fortitude continue to be wantonly smoshed to pieces by Federal soldiery and all of its ante bellum machinery was maafter the war of refitting the factory and pur suing the even tenor of his chosen way. In under his disastrous circumstances, he resolved to associate with himself gentlemen of public spirit and capital, and with them jointly to enlarge the factory building procure improved machinery, use the best material, and turn out goods that should successfully compete with those made at the South, or at the North. To day he experiences the realization of that purpose, and on the foundation of the old mills a statelier edifice is reared, and the whir and busy hum of machinery, counting the threads of warp and wool and seeming a most instinct with life, greets his ear.

The goods which the firm are new turning out we are assured are superior in every par ticular to any heretofore manufactured in the State, have an advantage over those introduced from the Eastern cities in all save show, and are always precisely what they are represented. Their texture and linish are such, that we cannot perceive why our people should not prefer and are told that they can get the Buck and goods, acknowledged to be honest articles, for the same amount of money that they give for doubtful goods, it is surprising that these mills are not more liberally encouraged in this section of eur country. The mills do not under-sell the retailer; and they fill orders for suits of clothes only because the goods are not found on other shelves accessible to those who desire to buy them. If more liberally patronized by the merchants the proprietors would further utilize their almost exhaustless water privileges, give remunerative employment to a still larger number of operatives, and keep in the country thousands upon thousands of dotlars which are now sent abroad to purchase woolen fabrics and never return until the products of the farm are shipped to restore a depleted circulation.

Other portions of the State and the farther South are sending in orders, we are informed, for these goods, and are more alive to the im portance of building up enterprizes that serve to render us really independent, than our own people, who are to reap the immediate tenefits industrial pioneers or the expenditures they and their employees necessarily make. The first step towards relied is to keep capital at home: factories, among which that of John B. Hunton & Co., may be numbered, contribute to this end, and should be encouraged by acts as well as kind words: - Warrenton Index.
